Seek To Replace Struck Home With Two-Family Unit

By Susan Rand

They can't move back into their bus-dented home so David and Hermine Cleary are petitioning the Zoning Board of Appeals for a variance that will allow them to build a new two-family house on the same piece of land.

The 123 North Main St. residence has been empty since a Merrimack Valley Transit Authority bus heading into Andover center crossed North Main Street and slammed into the corner of the home. The Clearys had just spent $50,000 renovating their house and were forced to move out when Building Inspector Sam DeSalvo judged it unsafe for occupancy. Also living in the home were tenants John and Ellen O'Hare, their daughter, Tara, and James Cleary, now a student at Northeastern University. David and Hermine Cleary have set up a temporary home on Temple Place.

The next Zoning Board meeting is set for Thursday, Oct. 4, at 7:30 p.m., in the second floor meeting room in the school office building, located off the Whittier Street entrance. The Cleary hearing is one of eight the board will conduct at their meeting.

The Clearys' requested variance is needed because town bylaws do not allow new multi-family dwellings to be built in a Single Residence A district, where the North Main Street parcel is located.

With a laugh, Cleary added that if the board approves his request he won't build his new home so close to the street. The Clearys sued the transit company and have not yet settled that suit, Cleary said.

Also at the October meeting, a Tewksbury business will make another try at renovating an old aluminum warehouse at 51 Andover St. Originally Picwel Builders, of Tewksbury, wanted to add onto the existing building and build a two-story addition on the western end of the structure to accommodate four offices. The board turned that request, made in June, down because they felt it would "overpower the neighborhood," said Philip Sullivan, the Andover attorney who argued Picwel's case.

Four Andover Street residents spoke against the proposal at the June meeting, saying office space would bring more traffic to an already congested roadway.

At the October meeting Sullivan will ask for a variance to build a single story office building on the same parcel of land, a proposal that he said is half the size of the original Picwel request and one that would make the exterior of the building look "more residential." This second request is submitted by Arbor Associates, a real estate office in Tewksbury where, Sullivan said, some employees are "related" to Picwel Builders.

John D. Lewis, 3 Henderson Avenue, will ask the board for renewal of a special permit he received in 1978 that allows parking on a parcel of land he owns in a Single Residence A district bounded by Haverhill, York and Balmoral Streets. The land is used by Woodworth Motors as a storage and show lot for cars. Andover attorney Richard J. Asoian, who will represent Lewis at the zoning meeting, told THE TOWNSMAN that the permit has been renewed every two years "without problem" by his client.

Lorene Comeau, a member of the Appeals Board, will represent her employer, the John M. Corchran Co., a real estate company, and the Andover Business Park Inc., of Milton, to request a variance to allow Corchran to construct a sign at the entrance to the Andover Business Park, on River Road at the Lawrence-Andover line. Comeau said the sign will say only "Andover Business Park," and will be placed at the entrance to the 80 acre site.

Also at the meeting Clyde H. Brunquell, 7 Millstone Circle, will request another special permit that he needs in

Tax Question On Agenda For Selectmen

The Board of Selectmen will hold their second September meeting next Monday night, Sept. 24, at 7:30 in the town offices on Bartlet Street.

During the meeting, the board will hold a public hearing on the annual question of whether to vote for tax classification — which, if approved, would grant homeowners a lower tax rate than business and industry taxpayers. The board has voted against classification in past years.

Otherwise, according to all indications this week, the selectmen will have very little business to take up during next week's meeting.

Dargoonian Subdivision On Agenda

The Planning Board will get their first look at preliminary plans for a 28-lot cluster subdivision on Dargoonian Brothers Farm during a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday night, Sept. 25, at town offices on Bartlet Street.

The planners are scheduled to discuss preliminary plans for the proposed subdivision, to be called Strawberry Fields, located on the 33-acre farm off Blanchard Street. The developer is D & L Development Corp. of Methuen.

Also on the agenda: a second look at the proposed Hawk Ridge subdivision. The developer, Coolidge Construction, will submit revised preliminary plans for that 14.5-acre site off Rattlesnake Hill Road. The board recently denied the first set of plans for an eight-lot subdivision at Hawk Ridge.

The board will also review preliminary plans for Andover Business Park, a River Road industrial development located on the Andover-Lawrence line.

Open House Scheduled At Day Care Center

In recognition of National Adult Day Care Week, the new Andover Day Care Center will sponsor an Open House from 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 2.

The Adult Day Care program is an extension of the services offered by the Andover Council on Aging. It is a professionally-supervised program that permits a frail, elderly or handicapped person to continue living independently in the community, while receiving day-to-day supportive care according to the individual's needs.

The Day Care Center is located in the Senior Center, on the Whittier Street side of the new Andover town offices. For further information, call the Senior Center at 470-3800, ext. 295, or stop by during the open house.

Open House At Shawsheen Tonight

Parents of Andover's youngest students will get a look inside the newly renovated Shawsheen School Early Childhood Center at an open house planned for tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Kindergarten, readiness and early childhood teachers and administrators will be on hand for the event, which features a visit to the children's rooms at 8:15 p.m.

Saturday Cleanup Day

Household Hazardous Waste Cleanup Day will be held this Saturday, Sept. 22, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the West Junior High parking lot on Shawsheen Road in Andover. A chemist from Recycling Industries will supervise the intake of all substances, preferably labeled, including oil base paints, furniture stripper and polish, old chemistry sets, outdated medicines, acids, banned pesticides, photographic chemicals, solvents, caustics, fertilizers and batteries. Disposal of these materials by pouring down a drain can corrode plumbing, release toxic fumes, cause septic system malfunction, contaminate soil and groundwater or interfere with proper operation of municipal sewage treatment facilities. Burial in landfills can contaminate soil and underground streams.

The Andover Board of Health, under the direction of Everett F. Penney, supported by the Andover League of Women Voters and Andover Recycling, is heading this effort. Householders can safely and conveniently clear out commonly used household chemicals that require careful disposal. Rain date is Saturday, Sept. 29.

Help for Victims of Incest or Sexual Abuse

Keeping the secret compounds the problem. That's what all those special programs on incest and sexual abuse seem to be saying. And that's what we've found at Somers Trust/Psychological Associates in our ten years of dealing with these problems which divide families and leave emotional scars.

Since letting the secret out is the answer, we've tried to make it easier to talk. In April, we were the first in the area to start a support group for mothers and daughters, either of whom have been victims of abuse.

We also work with the abusers. Somers Trust offers group, individual and family therapy.

The most important thing with incest or sexual abuse is open communications between family members. For further information phone 688-8004.

*Once incest or sexual abuse with a minor has been alleged, we are required by law to report this to the state Department of Social Services.

U Lowell Band To Be Featured

The 90-member University of Lowell Marching Chiefs will perform in exhibition at the fifth annual Andover High School Invitational Marching Band Field Show and Competition Sunday, Sept. 30.

Under the direction of Prof. David Martins and assistant director Brent Ferguson, the band marches in precision corps style to original drills designed by Jerry Corradino and plays music arranged by Danny Lutz with Peter Furnari on percussion. The color guard is instructed by Carol Howell and led by Capt. Sandi Pellicane. Drum majors John Lucciano and Doreen Rivard lead the Chiefs through their marching repertoire of "West Side," "Devil is a Liar," "Spanish Fantasy" and "Musician."

Since being accepted in 1979 as a major ensemble of the College of Music, the marching Chiefs have established themselves as one of the finest college marching bands in the northeast. Half of the band members are music majors at the university while the other members are students in the university's other six colleges. In addition to performing at university football games and in exhibition, the chiefs also perform for the New England Patriots.

They will host their own show at McDonald Stadium in Malden on October 14 and will participate in several shows and parades in New York and Connecticut.

ACT Presents Mousetrap

A talented cast has been selected and rehearsals are underway for the Andover Community Theatre's (A.C.T.) season opener, "The Mousetrap," in late October.

Two Andover residents will make their A.C.T. debuts: Michael Sullivan has been cast as the stuffy, proper English husband and Evey Chedekel will essay the role of the imperious Mrs. Boyle. Third newcomer, Deborah Nash of Bradford, has the role of Mollie, owner of Monkswell Manor. Two of A.C.T.'s behind-the-scenes people are stepping out in front of the footlights. James Girgenti, who thrilled audiences with his creative direction and choreography of "Pippin," "Chicago" and "Fiddler," will portray the neurotic, child-like Christopher Wren. Kimberly Enders, technical director for last year's production of "West Side Story," has the part of the young, mysterious, world-traveller, Miss Casewell. Rounding out the cast are three actors familiar to A.C.T. playgoers: Dennis Perrault, Frank Kaplan and Jack Virr, all of whom appeared in last spring's dramatic presentation "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." They play Det. Sgt. Trotter, Major Metcalf and Mr. Paravicini, respectively.

Ron Wackowski of Andover is directing. Last season he directed the popular comedy "Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

Sponsored by the Andover Band Association, Inc. for the benefit of the Andover High School Marching Band, the field show and competition will begin at 1 p.m. at Eugene V. Lovely Field at the high school.

Band director Marc Keroack and competition chairman Doug Snow have noted that 12 high school bands, including the Andover High School Golden Warrior Marching Band, will perform.

Also serving on the arrangements committee are Susan Schwarz, 35 Lovejoy Road, food chairman; Gail Schulz, 108 Lowell St., 50/50 chairman; Barbara Snow, 3 Garfield Lane, program chairman; Fred Gorman, 382 South Main St., traffic/parking chairman; James Oberst, 17 Exeter Way, bus greeting chairman; John Stevens, 58 Red Spring Road, ticket sales chairman; and Louise Hart, 11 Heather Drive, publicity chairman.

League Planning Fall Brunch

The League of Women Voters of Andover is inviting prospective members to the annual Fall Brunch on Saturday, Sept. 29, between 10 a.m. and noon at the home of Jan and Art Boni, 6 Langley Lane, Andover.

Membership chairperson Jan Boni asks interested persons to contact her to make reservations.

When men, women and youth join the League of Women Voters of Andover, they are connected with the national and state organization as well, receiving the benefits of the publications and lobbying efforts on all levels. The league was instrumental in gaining passage of the 25-year extension of the Voting Rights Act and has been actively fighting to retain the major provisions in the Clean Air Act. In Massachusetts, the LWVM has been active in lobbying for bills that assure equitable distribution of local aid to cities and towns and is following closely the progress of the Education Reform package, H5704.

The Andover League has completed research for a new "Town Handbook" which has been published by the league in revised editions several times since it was first offered in 1974.

The organization points with pride at involvement of Andover League members in town boards and agencies during its history. The primary goal of the league is maintaining a membership of informed and active citizens. Those who want to learn more and/or join in sustaining citizen participation in government are invited to attend.

Troop 76 Conducts Meeting

Boy Scout Troop 76 held its first meeting of the 1984-85 season Friday, Sept. 14, at the Ballard Vale United Church. Twenty-six scouts attended the meeting. A planning meeting between parents and troop committees was also held.

A bottle drive will be conducted in the South Andover area October 13. A fund-raising dinner is being planned for late November. The money is needed for tents and other camping equipment.

Richard Darling, scoutmaster, outlined a 50-mile canoe trip through the Adirondack Mountains in New York for August, stating that the troop should make it its major goal for the year.

Troop 76 still has room for a few more new members. Any boy who is 11 years old or has completed the fifth grade is invited to join. A boy does not have to be a Cub Scout prior to becoming a Boy Scout. Meetings are held every Friday from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Ballard Vale United Church.

Kitchen Design

David A. Clement, designer

Kitchen countertops are vitally important because these surfaces are where you are closest to your kitchen materials. No matter what look is desired, formica makes an excellent choice because it is the most practical. When selecting kitchen formica tops, those with slight texture will not show as many scratches as those with smooth surfaces. Give your counters some architectural distinction by opting to give them a thick apron. The term "apron" refers to the thickness of the side of the counter. It does not have to be solid. Instead of the usual one-inch apron, ask your kitchen designer if a thicker version is possible. Measurements must be taken to be certain that there is sufficient clearance for the drawers to open.

You'd be surprised at how making a few additions to your kitchen can make a difference and add new life to your room. Whether it be counter tops or back splashes, new cabinet fronts or just changing the hardware on your cabinets you can have an eye catching room. To know which treatment will benefit you, just visit WINDSOR KITCHENS at 1181 Boston Rd., Ward Hill. Our friendly staff enjoys creating new ideas for you in your home. We listen to what is important to you and then make sure you receive it. Call 372-3444 or stop in Mon-Thurs. 9-5:30; Fri. til 8; Sat. til 2 & by appointment.

ABC Welcomes New Students

Five sophomore girls from New York City—two each from Brooklyn and Manhattan and one from Queens—have joined Andover's ABC House. The Andover Committee for a Better Chance is an affiliate of the national organization which provides academically talented minority students with an educational alternative. The Andover public school program was one of the first and is now in its 18th year. Ten students and the program's resident directors, Patty and Barry McCloskey, and their two daughters live at the ABC House, 134 Main St. Each student also has a local host family with whom he or she spends time.

The program is completely supported by local donations and fundraising activities such as the food concession at last Sunday's Art-in-the-Park festivities. Senior Willie Rolan presided over the grill for the third and last year and all the other students spent most of the day at the tables as well.

New students this year are:

Lourdes Ascona from Manhattan has one sister and is interested in pursuing a career in either architecture or law. Bruce and Susan Scherr, 11 Apache Avenue, are her host family.

Cristina Geigel from Brooklyn has three sisters and a brother. She is interested in social work and her host family is Michael and Cecelia Arthur, 51 Red Spring Road.

Rowena Smith from Park Slope, Brooklyn, originally from England, has one sister and is interested in the sciences. Glenn and Diane Cadagan, 11 Tiffany Lane, are her host family.

Adrienne Everhardt from Manhattan, an only child, would like some day to be a surgeon. Robin and Ronald Cole, 4 Marie Drive, will be her host family.

Alana Ochoa from Trinidad by way of St. Albans, Queens, has one brother and looks forward to a career in law. Her host family is Ann and Dave Murphy, 1 Pynchard Avenue.

The program requires the students to maintain high academic standards and be active in other school and town activities. Two of the older students are class offi-

Junior Phyllis Sheriff is captain of the volleyball team on which Jeannette also plays. Willie participated in the Friendly Visitor program last year and plans to be a volunteer tutor for the Boys Clubs in Lawrence this year.

The McCloskey's daughters are also busy. Senior Shawna is a standout on the basketball and track teams and is actively involved in peer counseling and Big Brother-Big Sister. Erin, in the seventh grade, keeps busy with All School Band and various sports. Mrs. McCloskey is the house cook this year.

ABC officers for the coming year are: Roger Wiehe, 103 Salem st., president; Michael Frishman, 179 Shawsheen Road, vice president; Sue Dadd, 45 Abbot St., secretary; Peter Jeton, 75 Pine St., treasurer.

In addition to financial support the program also needs volunteer tutors and volunteer help in other areas. There is some need for donations of good used furniture and bicycles. People interested in making a donation or serving on the board, as a host family or a volunteer in some other area should contact an officer of the house directly.

Childhood School Requirement Moves Into An Art Gallery

By Sue Aucella Deacon

It is an ancient art, practiced first on bone and shells, metal and stone, before there was paper.

In China, it is an art more esteemed than painting. Its strokes of black ink have little to do with Western art, and everything to do with concentration and control, balance and harmony.

"Everything must come from inside, not from outside," Han-Chin Loh explains; he is a master of this art, Chinese calligraphy. "You must let the brush coincide with your own idea, in your own mind."

Mr. Loh, who moved to Bailey Road in West Andover two years ago, is currently exhibiting examples of his calligraphy at the Andover Gallery, 68 Park St., in a show called "Grasp the Center." The show opened last Friday evening in the gallery's new quarters (upstairs from its old location), and will continue through Oct. 9.

A former university professor and government official, Mr. Loh has been practicing calligraphy since his childhood in mainland China. All Chinese children learned calligraphy as part of their education, he says: "I was no exception. But I kept on practicing it, until now."

He is 82, a quiet and gentle man, smiling and calm. Born in Hangchow, in the province of Chekiang, he came to the United States from Taiwan in 1970. After living on Guam and then in Lowell, he moved to Andover with his wife, Jeanne Loh, to be closer to his stepson, Thomas Li of Bailey Road.

(The Lohs also have, between them, two children in Washington state, one in Florida, and one in Taiwan as well.)

Han-Chin was educated in China and England — "long, long ago," he says, laughing — where he studied economics. For many years he was too busy to practice calligraphy, and the art was confined to his leisure hours.

He worked for Commercial Press, "a very famous publishing company," for a while, but during the early 1920s politics called him. He joined the Nationalist party in its revolutionary movement to wrest control of China from a long succession of warlords. ("I was very young," he notes.)

Mr. Loh was director of aviation and navigation in the Ministry of Communications for the Republic of China in 1935-1936. He was also chairman of the Eurasia Aviation Corp., formed in cooperation with a German company.

After Japan began its invasion of China in 1937 — an invasion that would later become part of World War II — Mr. Loh moved with the Nationalists to the wartime capital of Chungking, on the Yangtze River. During the late '30s he became chief secretary of the executive committee of the Nationalist party, assisting party leader General Chiang Kai-Shek.

Han-Chin was the mayor of Sian, capital city of Shensi province on the Yellow River, during the war years of 1944-1945.

He describes with some irony how instead of unearthing that city's archaeological treasure — a collection of 600 ancient stone tablets — he buried it, to protect the historic tablets from Japanese bombings.

After the Communist party had won control of the mainland and formed the People's Republic of China, Chiang Kai-Shek led the Nationalist party to Taiwan in 1950, where he re-established the Republic of China.

In the years that followed, Han-Chin Loh served as chairman of the board of directors of the Taiwan Shipping Corporation (1960-1963), chairman of Chung Shin Electric Corp., Taiwan (1964-1966), and as a professor at Tam Kiang University, Taiwan (1967-1970).

Now that he is retired, Mr. Loh once again has time to practice the art that has engaged him since his boyhood. "It gives me pleasure, that's the chief thing," he says. But he still finds it challenging to create pieces that satisfy his standards, and much of his work ends up torn into pieces and tossed into the wastebasket: "I keep what deserves to be kept."

In China, he explains, calligraphy is "the foremost art. Intellectually refined, persons prefer Chinese calligraphy to painting." His wife adds that Chinese calligraphy "stands above the painting art" because it is more difficult to evoke a mood with calligraphy's black-on-white simplicity than with a painting's subject (a landscape, perhaps) and colors.

(Mr. Loh adds that Chinese calligraphy "cannot be compared" to Western painting: "They are different things.")

His calligraphy exhibit includes pieces Han-Chin has completed during the past two years, although a few are older. Most of the pieces are vertical; some are horizontal. They are copies of inscriptions found on ancient stones and monuments, or famous poems from the Chinese dynasties. (English translations are included in the show.)

On most of the long, narrow pieces of white paper, row after row of small Chinese characters form patterns that are intricate and graceful. Some feature just one row of bold characters, or a single large character.

The black brush strokes are as simple as a lone horizontal line, as complex as a flowing union of curves, squares and dots. Together they form images that are, somehow, serene.

Mr. Loh first met the owner of the Andover Gallery, Howard Yezerski, two years ago, when he brought four large pieces to the gallery to be framed. (These were a poem about the goddess of the River Loh, an anniversary gift to Mrs. Loh). The gallery owner thought Mr. Loh's work was "so artistic, so very beautiful," that he was inspired to suggest an exhibit, Mrs. Loh recalls.

The calligrapher has never shown his work before. "I was very reserved," he explains. "I didn't want to show off."

Han-Chin began studying calligraphy at the age of six or seven with the principal of his primary school, who was "not famous, but an excellent writer of Chinese calligraphy." By the time he was ten, the student was learning how to write "according to the rubbings of stone inscriptions of ancient times — it was very exceptional to learn that, at that age. I was very interested."

Han-Chin studied the ancient writings and practiced copying them "every day, on weekends, on vacations, in the summer." After more than 70 years, he still pores over the characters in his large collection of books on ancient writings, and still practices them regularly: "It is very hard."

Historically, Chinese calligraphy can be grouped into four major categories, Mr. Loh says. The earliest styles were inscribed on bronze, stone (on temple pillars, for instance), or on bone and shell: bones were used in "very elaborate ceremonies to tell fortunes, whether it was a good day to go hunting" during the Shang dynasty (1766-1122 B.C.), he explains.

During the Chin dynasty (221-207 B.C.), a "sort of revolution" occurred, and the ancient styles were unified into one style used throughout China, "into such kind of style which can be very quickly engraved, a daily style for documenting, maybe on wood." This was called the clerical style.

Chinese calligraphers began to use brushes late in the Chin dynasty, and paper came into use late in the Han dynasty (206 B.C.- A.D. 220). This was a "big change," Mr. Loh notes, and as it became "very popular to use brush and paper," the clerical style flourished. Perhaps the finest Chinese calligrapher, Wang Hsi-Chih, emerged during the Han period.

Brush and paper gave calligraphers the freedom to develop new styles. The standard style consisted of "strokes very closely arranged"; it was followed by the easier, "very quick" running style;

Andover Youngsters Score Big In Summer Education Olympics

By Susan Rand

Andover scored big in the medal count this summer, winning three of the 68 medals presented at the Summer Olympic Games - the National Center of Economic Education for Children's summer olympics, that is.

Andover students Michelle Barry, Adam Brown and Erik Tupper won gold and silver medals in a competition sponsored by the National Center, based at Lesley College, in Cambridge. Drawing on the qualities that Olympic athletes need to win their medals the younger olympians translated those traits into achievement on the academic level.

Michelle, a sixth grader at the Bancroft School, was awarded a gold medal for entrepreneurship, one of the five categories in which awards were given. Adam, also in the sixth grade at Bancroft, took a silver in athletics and Erik, now a seventh grader at the Doherty Junior High, was awarded a gold medal in art.

Like the Olympic athletes these young achievers had to prove their worth and skill to their classmates because, unlike the real olympians, these kids needed the votes and backing of their colleagues to "make the team," or win nomination for the award competition.

Also nominated by her classmates to compete in the athletic category was Lisa Allen who won the annual Bancroft School race last year.

In a special summer edition of "The Elementary Economist," the newsletter of the National Center, published at Lesley College, classroom activities were outlined, using the Olympics as a theme, for youngsters from kindergarten through grade six. And an awards competition called "Striving for Excellence" was initiated with gold, silver and bronze medals to be handed out in five categories, they were arts, academics, athletics, citizenship and entrepreneurship. Of the 68 medals that were awarded, Andover students won three, an honorable tally for a community in the national competition where there weren't even winners from every state in the country.

Andover's representation in the winner's circle, "speaks well for Andover," said Helen Spener Thompson, an administrator at the National Center of Economic Education. She said there were somewhere between 250 and 300 youngsters nominated last spring for the medals.

All of Andover's winners were from the same school and probably learned some of the skills that helped them win their awards in a unique program called the Children's Economy. In the winter of each school year Bancroft fifth grade teacher Robert Littlefield, creator of the nine-year-old economics lesson for children, teaches his students about the jobs people have in both the private and public sector. Come spring they form their own community and take on the jobs about which they have learned. And every Friday afternoon they open the Children's Economy Mall, located in the Bancroft School halls, for business.

Academic Medal Winners

Posed with teachers and administrators are three Andover students who won Olympic medals in an academic competitions sponsored by the National Center for Economic Education for Children, at Lesley College. They are, from left, Mo Ferris and Dorothy Pelc, both Bancroft teachers, Erik Tupper, Kenneth R. Seifert, superintendent of schools; Adam Brown, teacher Robert Littlefield, Michelle Barry and Lois Haslam, assistant superintendent for elementary education.

Last spring Michelle Barry was part owner of the MLA Insurance Company (operated by Michelle and friends Lisa Allen and Alana Hennessey). She also delivered the annual Chamber of Commerce speech to the mini-community, a task that teacher Littlefield said she carried off with perfection for an 11 year-old.

"She really impressed her classmates," said Littlefield. "She was a model of someone who could get out there and project."

Michelle learned to speak in front of a group, as did Erik and Adam, in part because of the Children's Economy. Adam ran a movie theater in the economics project and gave introductory talks to his patrons before each film, said Littlefield. And Erik's artistic talents were in evidence when he operated a bookstore and art gallery in the Economy as a fifth grader at Bancroft, said Littlefield.

Adam convinced his classmates that he was capable of winning a medal in the athletics part of the national contest. The young boy said he plays baseball, basketball, tennis, golf and football.

For his entry, Erik submitted a drawing that was part of a science project on pollution that he did for Mo Ferris' class, while a Bancroft student. As Erik explained, it was a drawing "that I did in one night," of an American eagle suffering from pollution, or "all kinds of gunk," as the outgoing seventh grader described.

School administrators Kenneth R. Seifert, superintendent of schools, and Assistant Superintendent Lois Haslam congratulated the young olympians and heaped praise upon Littlefield and his economy program for giving Michelle, Adam and Erik a forum in which to show their talents.

Delores Pelc, who was acting principal at Bancroft this summer, received recognition from Lesley College's center.

The awards are the "icing on the cake" for Littlefield and his program which is a "real solid educational experience," the superintendent said. And Haslam added that the children's economy experience is something that stays with the children long after they leave.

Attending Governor Dummer

Governor Dummer Academy launched its 222nd year with Headmaster Peter W. Bragdon welcoming 105 new students to join the 237 returning students.

Founded by Lt. Gov. William Dummer of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, the academy is the oldest boarding school for boys and the 13th oldest independent school in the country. It has been in continuous operation at the same site since its opening in 1763.

Charles Concerts Sunday

Five Raellettes and costumes, 17 orchestra members and instruments, tons of equipment and music will arrive with Ray Charles aboard his private plane on Sunday, Sept. 23, to open the second season of the Collins Center.

After landing at Manchester Airport, the entourage will travel to Andover by chartered bus and arrive in time for the first performance at 4 p.m.

Following the "load-in" at the stage entrance, Charles will go to his special "Star" dressing room where his favorite fruit, grapes and watermelon, and soft drinks will await him.

Thirty-five minutes after his arrival Charles and his group will be ready for a sound check and then prepare for the first performance.

For this opening show of the second season, the Collins Center has brought in a special nine-foot concert grand piano and a B-3 Hammond electric organ and speaker for Charles' use.

The Ray Charles show will be preceded by the comedy/mime team of Stromberg and Cooper, veteran entertainers of the college circuit, who combine comedy, pathos, mime and audience participation in their unique show.

Tickets for the 7 p.m. show are almost sold out. Good orchestra and mezzanine seats still remain for the 4 p.m. show. However, the ticket demand has increased in these final two weeks.

October will bring three performances at the center, starting with the Tony Award winning musical "Ain't Misbehavin'" on Tuesday, Oct. 16. Sponsored by WSSH, this show is the first of two Broadway shows being presented this year. "Oliver" will be featured in March.

Les Ballet Jazz de Montreal, the spectacular dance company from Canada, will appear Friday, Oct. 19.

The Classical Ruby series will open Thursday, Oct. 25, with a guest appearance by the renowned piano virtuoso Peter Serkin and the Springfield Symphony Orchestra. Still in his mid-30s, Serkin has achieved international acclaim as a feature guest artist.

Two shows due here later this year opened recently to positive audience responses. The Negro Ensemble's production of "A Soldiers Play" is concluding its run at Boston's Colonial Theatre and Shakespeare and Company's "Midsummer Night's Dream" is continuing in New York.

Organ Recital At Church

The Episcopal Parish of Christ Church-Andover will present the first of its 1984-85 series of Sundays at Four concerts for the greater Andover community on Sunday, Sept. 23.

Earl L. Miller, music director of Christ Church, will plan an organ concert on the church's three-manual pipe organ. The instrument, originally built by George Hutchings of Boston in 1888, was enlarged by William Laws in the 1930s and again by Fritz Noack in 1964, making it the largest organ in Andover.

Miller's concert will be in two parts. The first will feature works by Wolstenholme, John Stanley, Johann Sebastian Bach and Felix Mendelssohn's Third Organ Sonata. The second half will present three composers' use of the theme and variation style of composition. The first work will be a series of variations on a renaissance dance compiled by the 16th century Dutch composer Jan Pieterszoon Sweelinck.

TheatreTrips

The Lawrence Jewish Community Center is beginning its theatre season with the comedy "Sister Mary Ignatius Explains it All to You" on Sunday, Oct. 21, at the Charles Playhouse at 3 p.m. matinee.

Next will be "Torch Song Trilogy" by Harvey Fierstein, best remembered for "La Cage Aux Folles," on Wednesday, Nov. 14, 2 p.m. matinee at the Shubert Theatre.

"Gigi," the French musical starring Louis Jourdan and Betsy Palmer, will be Wednesday, Nov. 28, 2 p.m. matinee at the Colonial Theatre.

Carol Channing, Leslie Uggams and Andrea McArdle in "Jerry's Girls" will be offered Wednesday, Dec. 19, 2 p.m. matinee at the Colonial Theatre.

Lowell Tour Saturday

Andover Chapter of the Appalachian Mountain Club has planned a full menu of local hikes and tours to whet the appetites of all who enjoy exploring nearby conservation lands and places of historic interest.

This season's outings begin this weekend with a trip to the Lowell National Historic Park Saturday, Sept. 22.

The restoration of this famous planned industrial community features its intricate canal system, which is experienced first-hand by visitors during two or three boat rides affording views of the mills which made Lowell a center of the textile industry in the 1800s. At one time a flood threatened to destroy the city and dramatic prevention was given by the use of giant sluice gates in the nick of time.

Participants will be treated to a trolley ride, views of the first railroad in New England and visits to meeting halls which heard the voices of Daniel Webster, John Quincy Adams and Abraham Lincoln.

This section of Lowell, officially established in 1978 as a National Historic Park, was restored through a proposal by the Model Cities program and gives an outstanding representation of New England life during the Industrial Revolution.

Call Robert Burke of the Andover Appalachian Mountain Club to make the necessary reservations.

Choir In Concert At Church

The Teen Challenge Training Center Choir will present a program of contemporary Christian music, testimony and drama at Free Christian Church, 31 Elm St., Andover, on Saturday, Sept. 22, at 7:30 p.m. The concert will be sponsored by New England Reach Out, a Christian program that works with people with drug-alcohol related problems.

The choir is composed of young men from all over the United States and Puerto Rico. Every member comes from a background of drugs, alcohol and/or crime. Each member, with his own story from murder to heroin addiction, testifies to the miracle working power of God's love.

Cider Day

Cider Day will be held at Greenbelt's Cox Reservation, Saturday, Oct. 6, beginning at 11 a.m. Pick apples and make cider in an old-style hand cider press. Everyone is welcome. There is no fee.

The trees include such hard-to-find varieties as Northern Spy and Roxbury Russet. Greenbelt's maps of the orchard will be available. Some of the trees have been pruned and cared for so that many, like the Rhode Island Greening (begun in Newport, R.I., about 1700) are bearing heavily.

To get to the Cox Reservation, take route 133 through the town of Essex, past Village Shops. Cox entrance is marked on the left. Or, take Route 128's Exit 14, drive west on Route 133 past Farnham's Clams. Cox entrance is marked on the right.

Good News Curriculum At Church

The Sunday school at West Parish Church of Andover has started the "Good News" curriculum (nursery-sixth grade) for the second year. Weekly lessons are shared with each child's family through take-home materials. All classes are held Sundays from 10:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. and include a children's worship service led by Diane Sheehan, superintendent of Christian education. This year's teachers are Sally Barron and Barbara Robidoux, three and four year olds; Anne Litzenberger, kindergarten; Chris Hartwell, first grade; Judy Pulzetti, second grade; Carol Ann Marshall, third grade; Gail DerAnanian, fourth grade; Palla Schreurs, fifth grade; and Bette Henderson, sixth grade. Infant care is provided.

All families are invited to participate in the Sunday school program and should contact the church office, 129 Reservation Road, Andover, for information and registration.

Selichot Service At Temple

The pre-High Holiday late Saturday night service, the Selichot Service, will be held at Temple Emanuel, Haggetts Pond Road, Andover, on Saturday, Sept. 22, at 11 p.m.

Prayers for forgiveness are called Selichot, penitential prayers. Originally recited on Fast Days and then on Yom Kippur, the recitation of Selichot came to be extended, in time, to Rosh Hashanah and the Ten Days of Repentance.

These prayers are a preparation for the penitential season. Thus, their subject-matter includes reflections on human life and divine mercy, petitions for relief from suffering and persecution, confessions of sin and pleas for forgiveness. In Reform Judaism, the practice of reciting Selichot before Rosh Hashanah faded for a time. However, interest has revived.

Since Selichot is recited on Saturday night, Havdalah, the service that separates Shabbat from the weekdays, the holy from the profane, begins. Selichot is understood as the service in which the House of Israel, individually and collectively, struggles to return to God in preparation for the Days of Awe.

The Selichot evening will begin with cake, coffee and conversation at 10:30 p.m.

Nothing helps scenery like ham and eggs.

Donald H. McLean, Jr. Headed Academy Trustees

Donald H. McLean, Jr., a special associate of John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, in the development of cultural and educational programs in the Far East, 1952-1965; president of the Lahey Clinic, 1965-1975; and president of the board of trustees of Phillips Academy, Andover, 1968-1981, died Thursday, Sept. 13.

Born in Elizabeth, N.J., in 1910, he graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, Amherst College and the Yale Law School. In 1977 he was awarded an honorary LL.D. from Amherst for his work in the fields of education and philanthropy.

With the outbreak of World War II he joined the U.S. Army International Division and served until 1945. During that time he was promoted to Lt. Colonel and was awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding service. In 1945 he became special assistant to General Lucius D. Clay in Germany for the first year of American occupation in Berlin and was awarded a second Legion of Merit.

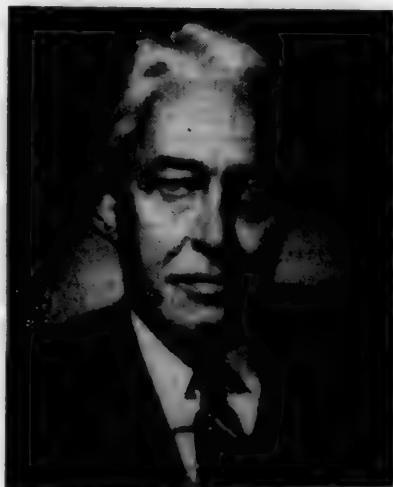

In 1952 he became a special associate of John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, developing post-war cultural and educational programs in Japan and South East Asia under the terms of the Peace Treaty between the U.S. and Japan. He was instrumental in the formation of the Agricultural Development Council, the Population Council, the International House of Japan, the International Center in New Delhi and the Ramon Magsaysay Award Foundation in Manila. He was highly praised in the U.S. and many Asian countries for this work.

He became president of the Lahey Clinic Foundation in Boston in 1965. In the next ten years he reorganized its structure, directed its relocation to Burlington and provided the leadership for its development into a major medical center.

Outstanding was his deep interest in Phillips Academy, where as a charter trustee in 1958 he led the campaign to raise $6,060,000, the largest goal ever set by a secondary school up to that time. He was president of the board from 1968 until retirement in 1981, during which time the school became coeducational, celebrated its Bicentennial and raised $50,610,000.

After graduation from law school, he served with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a New Deal agency, and later joined the New York law firm of Millbank, Tweed and Hope where he practiced until 1942.

During much of his life, he and his family lived in Summit, N.J., where he

In addition, he was a trustee of Massachusetts Financial Services from 1975 until 1982 and was a member of the American Bar Association as well as those of New York, Massachusetts and the District of Columbia.

He is survived by his wife, the former Martha Lamb of Stanstead, Quebec; and their four children, Donald H., III of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. James D. (Ruth) Lizotte of Silverton, Ore.; John A. of Yarmouth, Maine; and Mrs. David (Barbara) O'Neil of Lincoln; a brother, Edward R. of Greenville, Del.; and eight grandchildren.

For Those Of Us Who Are Older

By Janet D. Lake

Time is growing very short for signing up for the Crotched Mountain Oktoberfest September 29. Not only will you have a marvelous opportunity to view fall foliage on your way there, but when you get there, there will be so much to do: horse-drawn hayrides, chairlift rides up Mt. Monadnock, luncheon, King Ludwig's Bavarian Band, and bingo, too. And all for $22. You'll love it! And, especially since the fall foliage trip is already sold out, this will be an opportunity for those who were left out to see the foliage anyway. Sign up now.

I hope you have marked next Tuesday, Sept. 25, on your calendar and plan to be at the center at 12:45 to hear Ruth Sharpe talk about Ballardvale and show some super slides of the area depicting Ballardvale from 1880 to 1915. It is always fascinating to learn more about your hometown, and for some of you, it will be a great remembering time. Tuesday, Sept. 25, at 12:45.

The Andover Historical Society will present its next program in its series on October 3. The title is "Cotton Manufacturing in New England" and will include a description of cotton fabrics with emphasis on the Lowell mills. The program starts at 1 p.m. Of course, it is free.

On October 1, Roger Brooks, director of senior citizens activities at Brown's Hotel at Loch Seldrake in the Catskills, will conduct a demonstration calisthenics program done to country and western music. You will enjoy this free exercise class and learn more about Brown's resort hotel. Class begins at 1 p.m. Don't forget to pick up your free cheese September 26 between noon and 4 p.m. Only those who have already registered may receive cheese at this distribution.

The next mini-clinic will be held at Frye Circle September 25, next Tuesday, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Remember, you must have an appointment for this free service. Call the Andover health department to make yours.

Insurance Coverage Available

John Aulson, insurance coordinator for the town and schools, reminds parents that it is not too late to enroll students in a student insurance program for the current academic year.

According to Aulson, the student insurance offered by Commercial Insurance Company of Newark, N.J., through the Lester L. Burdick Agency of Boston can be purchased to back up family health insurance plans. It will pay the balance not covered under family plans so that students have 100 percent accident coverage. (Few family plans pay more than 50 percent of medical expenses following an injury, according to the Burdick agency.)

The voluntary insurance program offers round-the-clock coverage, or coverage for school hours only. Benefits include hospital, nurse, medical, surgical and dental expenses.

Students may pick up an application at their school principal's office or at Aulson's office at Andover town offices; or contact the Lester L. Burdick, Inc. Agency directly at 10 Post Office Square, Boston 02109, 426-0020, and ask for Mrs. L.P. Van Valkenburg, student administrator.

Less Than Half Town's Voters Follow Mostly State Trends

By Susan Rand

Not even half the town's registered voters came out to vote in Tuesday's state primary election where all of the front runners in the contested races won their party's nomination and all but the winner in the Democratic senate race won in Andover.

There were 6,600 Andover voters, or 42 percent of the town's 15,766 registered voters, who traveled to the polls, for the first time located at two spots, the Andover High School and at the Senior Citizen's Center. In the Democratic fight for the senate nomination, local favorite James M. Shannon of Lawrence, took Andover, winning 70 percent of the vote which translates into 2,713 votes, to John F. Kerry's 20 percent, or 798 votes. Kerry was the eventual winner in the race which was close to the end. Michael Joseph Connolly finished with 4 percent of Andover, that is 181 votes. And David M. Bartley had 3 percent or 141 Andover votes. Early unofficial returns show Kerry with 41 percent of the state vote, Shannon with 35 percent, Bartley capturing 14 percent and Connolly with 11 percent.

On the Republican side, party nominee Raymond Shamie took 65 percent of the vote in Andover, winning 1,736 votes, while Elliot L. Richardson received 913 votes for 34 percent of the vote. State-wide Shamie's unofficial total ran close to the margin he won in Andover. He took approximately 62 percent of the Republican vote while Richardson won 38 percent.

In a close district-wide contest Chester G. Atkins beat Philip L. Shea for the Democratic nomination for the Fifth District seat in Congress. Atkins won 66 percent of the Andover vote to Shea's 33 percent. While state unofficial figures show Atkins with 53 percent of the final vote and Shea with 47 percent. The race was "a real cliff-hanger," said Maryann Marusich, one of Atkins' Andover organizers.

Come November, Atkins will face Gregory S. Hyatt of Methuen who beat out Thomas P. Tierney for the Republican place on the ballot. Hyatt received 86 percent of the Andover vote and Tierney captured only 13 percent.

Local races didn't bring out the voters as the only local contest was for the Second Essex and Middlesex District Democratic nomination where former Senator William X. Wall was challenging incumbent Patricia McGovern who received 79 percent of Andover's vote to Wall's 20 percent.

There was no Republican opposition for the post which serves Andover residents in precincts one, two, three, four and five.

There will be a November contest for the First Essex and Middlesex District state senate seat between incumbent Republican Robert C. Buell, who received 917 votes in Andover, and William B. Squillace, a Democrat who received 858 votes on Tuesday. Neither man had opposition for his party's nomination.

Two Andover women will square off for the Seventeenth Essex District seat in the General Court and both were unchallenged for their party's nomination on Tuesday. Democrat Susan C. Tucker, 6 Farrwood Drive, the incumbent, received 3,327 votes and Republican Susan T. Poore, 85 Osgood St., won 2,076 votes. Both received a substantial number of blanks. Poore got 608 blanks and Democrats cast 581 ballots without voting for Tucker.

Governor's Council member John F. Markey won more than double his opponents number of votes in his bid to regain his seat. He was challenged by J. Leo McCarthy, who won only 12 percent of the Andover Democratic vote to Markey's 87 percent. There wasn't a Republican running for the council position.

There also was no Republican candidate for the Register of Probate in Essex County position that incumbent Democrat John F. Burke won with 83 percent of the Andover vote to challenger Timothy P. Driscoll's 16 percent.

In the race for the two open seats on the Essex County Board of Commissioners the only incumbent, Katherine M. Donovan, was re-nominated on the Democratic side with 41 percent of Andover's vote and an unofficial total of 40,165 votes county-wide. She received almost double the number of votes that the other Democrat, Terrence M. Breen of Methuen received with 31 percent of the Andover vote and unofficially 22,401 in the county. Republican Everett C. Hudson, the only Republican listed on the ballot received 1,953 votes in Andover. He will be on the November ballot. But figures were not available for write-in Republican candidate Joseph Guthrie who needed 1,000 votes to appear on the November ballot.

Essex County Treasurer Katherine O'Leary, a Democrat, received 2,448 votes in Andover. She did not run against anyone, nor was their a name on the Republican ballot for the position O'Leary now holds.

Like they did in this week's election Andover voters will mark their ballots at the same two locations in the Tuesday, Nov. 6 presidential election. Registered voters in precincts two, four, five, six and seven will cast their ballots at the Dunn Gymnasium at Andover High School. And, those in precincts one, three and eight will vote at the Senior Citizen's Center.

Andover Town Clerk Elden Salter told THE TOWNSMAN he was pleased with this week's "dry run" voting for the presidential election.

Planners View Preliminary K. of C. Building Plan

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Charter Development Corp. of Lynfield last Tuesday night revealed to the Planning Board its "very rough, very preliminary" plans for the Knights of Columbus site on Frontage Road.

Those plans call for changing the 6.7-acre parcel from residential to industrial zoning — a proposal annual town defeated in 1981.

The development corporation, which holds a one-year option to purchase the land from the K. of C., would like to build a three-story, 29,260-square foot "state-of-the-art design" research and development office building on the site, according to engineer William Bergeron.

Tenants of the office park would most probably be "high-grade research and development" companies, the engineer said, adding that several large, well-established ("prestigious") companies have shown some interest in the offices.

Traffic would enter the site from a main entrance on Frontage Road. The landscaped site would be served by an on-site septic system, Bergeron said, although the developers hope to eventually tie into a "potential" sewer line that may some day serve the Digital Equipment Corp. industrial site on nearby Dascomb Road.

The Frontage Road office park would include 305 parking spaces, the engineer said, and the building would be set back 100 feet from all property lines.

Andover Atty. Richard Asoian, representing the developer, said Charter Development was seeking planning board "input" on "how this property can best be developed so everyone will be satisfied." He described current plans for the site as "very preliminary, very rough."

The planners offered little comment on the preliminary plans, beyond noting that in past years, neighbors have strongly opposed attempts to rezone the Knights of Columbus parcel from Single Residence C. to Industrial. Charter is proposing Industrial D zoning, the most restrictive industrial zoning in Andover.

Chairman Margaret Bradshaw said increased traffic generated by the site would be "a big concern," pointing out that commuter traffic from Raytheon, a new office park under construction on Frontage Road and, eventually, the Digital site would all effect the same area.

Planner Andrew Girdwood added that in asking town meeting to rezone the site

Police Nab Man On Drug Charges

Police arrested an Andover man who they believe was selling drugs out of his home after watching his 55 Stevens St. residence for over a week.

Michael Roberts, 23, has been charged with possession of marijuana and cocaine with intent to distribute both and possession of hypodermic needles. He was arrested when Andover officers searched his home early Tuesday morning, said Det. Kevin Winters, one of the officers who investigated.

"We watched his house for little over a week," said Winters. "And observed activities we believed were indicative of drug traffic."

Winters didn't reveal how Roberts was watched by the police, saying only that they "found a vantage point in his neighborhood," after receiving information that Roberts might be selling drugs. Roberts was released from the Andover Police Station at about 2:30 a.m., after

Art In The Park

Over 1,000 people attended the tenth annual Andover Art in The Park exhibit, competition and sale Sunday. Guidelines Awaited

The planning board has given an indication that some preliminary guidelines will be forthcoming in October on such matters as extending the Central Business District, housing needs and multi-family housing bylaws.

Such a report is eagerly awaited in order to provide townspeople with sufficient time to examine the proposals prior to action at the annual town meeting next spring.

It is anticipated that the planning board members who have been working on these issues individually will have addressed the major needs of the town and be prepared to carry their thoughts forward, not only to board members but to the citizenry through public information sessions in the coming months.

Of particular importance, and in dire need of attention, is the proposal addressing the expansion of the business district.

This particular matter has for too long been 'tabled' so to speak, as planners and others in the community turn their attention to other community needs.

Meanwhile, Andover's business district has become filled and expansion of the community's commercial growth has been stifled.

Also, during the same period, there has been a creeping commercialism taking place, within legal grounds, along Elm Street and Park Street.

Both areas can stand some careful rezoning suggestions, since for all practical purposes, the areas are virtually a part of the downtown commercial area and rapidly losing any residential character.

Both areas indeed can accommodate such so-called business designations in order to accommodate professional offices or businesses for which there is a need in Andover.

Main street and North Main street must also come under the scrutiny of those who would expand the business district. There are sections in both areas which are suitable for business designation which would simply be an extension of commercial operations already existent and not commanding of high traffic.

As for the multi-family housing bylaw, Andover must soon come to grips with such regulation.

The attitude portrayed by recent town meeting actions which have denied such regulatory procedures in the community gives the impression that residents want to keep the town to themselves. It is an attitude which suggests fence-building once residency is established.

But, it is a dangerous attitude, since it prohibits those who have grown up in this community to continue to reside here.

The condominium concept has taken some time to establish itself in New England which could be considered somewhat characteristic of the area in general.

But, it is now an acceptable and desirous method of home-ownership for many and Andover should provide the necessary steps to permit such construction.

It is with such thoughts that the planners' recommendations and guidelines, scheduled for some time in October, are awaited.

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — September 1909

The school committee have arranged to have manual training taught in the old school house so that the pupils of the Bradlee School will not have to be transported to Andover as well as save them considerable valuable time. It will also afford the parents excellent opportunities to witness this important department of school work.

Quite a large number of Andover people were among the thousands that visited the Merrimack Valley Race Course this week to watch the auto races.

Miss Annie Braid, her nephew, Master Alfred Braid, and Miss Mary Hibberton, all of this town, are among the passengers rescued from the Steamship Laurentian, of the Allen Line, which grounded on Cape Race, last Monday.

Hartford — By offering for sale some stockings at the home of Mrs. Matilda Treat, a wealthy widow of 72, in order that he might raise sufficient money to carry him through his junior year at the Yale law school, Charles R. Goddard, 20, met his future wife two weeks ago. A week ago they were married by Rev. William D. Love of this city, although the announcement of their marriage was not made until yesterday. Mrs. Goddard is said to be worth about $50,000, and Goddard has been forced to work his way through the Yale law school.

50 Years Ago — September 1934

Some 50 Fall River strikers found that the combined Andover-Lawrence police force was a hard line to buck last Friday noon, when their attempt to enter Lawrence for the purpose of forming picket lines was frustrated in Shawsheen Village. Lawrence police under City Marshal Charles R. Vose and local police under Chief George A. Dane succeeded in stopping them at William street and sending them back toward Fall River.

A magnificent piece of workmanship is now a part of the Christ Church. It is the new altar, which was made possible through the legacy of the late Mrs. Francis Howe Johnson. It will be a memorial to herself and her husband. The woodwork of the reredos, which is curved like the sanctuary, is beautifully carved with the grape vine, wheat and flower symbols, with special bases for the candlesticks.

The tax rate for this year, announced yesterday by the assessors, is $29.50, the highest in the town's history. The highest previous to this year was $28.80 in 1926.

The Shawsheen Village soccer field, which the town has been trying to obtain as a public playground since last June, will not be sold by the American Woolen Co., it was learned yesterday, until the company has disposed of the administration building.

25 Years Ago — September 1959

The Industrial and Development Commission will meet tonight with members of the Planning Board and of the group proposing to establish a sports center on North Main st. The selectmen have not made a decision about calling a special town meeting to consider rezoning the area that formerly was farmland. Two Waltham teachers propose to establish the center, which will include bowling, ice skating and swimming in separate buildings.

One of the major arguments being advanced for a Route 110 bypass at High Plain rd., instead of a dead end as proposed by the state, hits directly at taxpayers' pocketbooks. For in researching the problem, it was found that the Route 93 overpass at High Plain rd. will have been, in effect, built for three houses unless the road is allowed to remain open. The state planned and built that overpass without question.

Action on a proposed salary adjustment for elementary school principals has been delayed by the School Committee. Meeting Tuesday night, the committee decided to consider the request for additional pay at budget time. The principals now receive pay according to the teachers' schedule — $3,800 to $5,800 — plus $650 to $1,000 extra depending on the number of rooms in their school.

10 Years Ago — September 1974

While admitting he would really have preferred to win, Phil Coppola was taking a philosophical view of it all Tuesday night, after hearing that he had been edged out for the Democratic nomination for the new Andover-only state representative spot by fellow-attorney Gerald Cohen, 1334 to 925. "I don't really feel like I'm a loser," he said, adding that he would continue "in any capacity to work for my people and my town."

Andover fire officials and the state fire marshal's office are continuing their investigation of two suspicious fires, one a spectacular blaze Monday which claimed the lives of six prize horses on Haggetts Pond Road. While no official finding has been given for the fire which destroyed a barn and the horses at the Charles Kirk residence, 65 Haggetts Pond Road, police and fire officials are investigating a severed telephone line to the home. Also under investigation is a fire which gutted the home of Richard J. Stempel, 274 Lowell St., which brought firefighters to the scene about 4:20 a.m. Saturday.

The selectmen Monday night unanimously approved a regulation which prohibits the consumption and possession of alcoholic beverages in town parks. The board also extended the regulation to cover Recreation Park.

for industrial rather than residential use, the developers would in effect be asking the town to "trade six homes for 300 cars."

Bradshaw also told the developers that building a large-scale septic system at the site would "definitely" be of concern to town officials as well.

The Knights of Columbus had proposed rezoning their land from SRC to ID on the annual town meeting warrant this year; however, they withdrew that warrant article before the meeting convened.

In April, the K. of C. announced that

Policy On Harassment Adopted

Following the state government's lead, the selectmen last Monday night voted unanimously to adopt a policy for "the prevention and elimination of sexual harassment in the workplace."

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony told the board it would be "appropriate" for Andover, as an employer, to adopt the policy as part of the state and town governments' affirmative action program. (Under Massachusetts General Law 151B and Title IV of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, sexual harassment is counted as a form of sex discrimination.)

The three-page policy approved by the board defines sexual harassment on the job, and offers several "considerations" (example: "A man as well as a woman may be the victim of sexual harassment, and a woman as well as a man may be the harasser.").

In addition, the policy outlines the town's responsibility for harassment (by its supervisory employees, for instance), and its responsibility for preventing and eliminating the problem (by telling employees how to report incidents, among other steps).

Town employees who violate the new harassment policy may be disciplined, the policy states, with steps "up to and including termination of employment."

paying $1,000 bail. A $10,000 surety bond of the $1,000 cash alternative was set for bail, said Winters.

Roberts was arraigned in Lawrence District Court on Tuesday morning and later that day at Woburn District Court, for an arrest earlier Monday evening by Reading Police who have charged him with possession of one pound of marijuana. Winters said the Andover case was continued until Monday, Nov. 26, for a pre-trial conference.

While searching Roberts' home Winters said the police found five pounds of marijuana, between two and three grams of cocaine and other drug paraphernalia including pipes, marijuana rolling papers, scales and baggies in which the marijuana is often stored and just over $2,000 in change. Roberts was home when police searched the house, said Winters.

"We got the search warrant fearing the evidence would be destroyed when he returned home (from the Reading Police station)," explained Winters. "And we were right, there were drugs in the house."

Working with Winters on the case were Andover officers Kevin Burke, Brian Pattullo and Robert Cronin and detectives John Bernhardt and David Grant.

Warriors Lose

The Andover High School football team lost their opening game to Lowell High 28-7 last Sunday. Warrior Mistakes Costly

By Rick Harrison

The Lowell High football team scored on its first two possessions, then took advantage of two costly Andover mistakes in the second half to register a season-opening 28-7 victory over the Golden Warriors in Merrimack Valley Conference action last Sunday at Lovely Field.

The game was not quite as one-sided as the final score indicates, Coach Dick Collins' squad driving for the tying touchdown midway through the third quarter before an interception by Lowell's Scott Boyle changed the whole complexion of the contest.

The Red Raiders worked that turnover for the first of two insurance touchdowns, then used a poor center snap in an Andover punting situation to set up their final TD in the fourth period.

The Golden Warriors' offense produced a textbook-perfect drive on its first possession, and showed definite signs of life throughout the contest with 90 yards passing and 78 more on the ground.

The defense was inconsistent, however, Lowell amassing 262 total yards including 182 on the ground.

The triumph enabled Lowell to boost its series' record against Andover to 4-1-0, the only loss coming last fall (19-8).

Andover will try to even its early-season ledger at 1-1 this Saturday afternoon, traveling to Billerica for a 1:30 p.m. contest against Coach Mike Esposito's Indians at the Marshall Middle School field.

Billerica is also 0-1-0 after dropping a 30-11 decision to strong Methuen last weekend.

Fast Start

Among the more encouraging things for AHS last Sunday were solid two-way efforts from running back-defensive end Shane Smith and quarterback-safety Tim Perry, along with an impressive showing by junior wide receiver Kevin Rourke and tough defensive play from Co-Capt. Brian McNally and John Barry, junior Rob DiTroia, linebacker Steve Duncan and end Keith Driscoll.

Smith fired a 28-yard touchdown pass to Rourke and also caught two aeriels for 24 more yards, while Perry completed 7-of-14 passes and rushed for 57 yards.

In addition to his TD reception, Rourke snagged two other passes but was forced out of the game with a leg injury following the third catch midway through the second period.

Lowell was ignited offensively by Tri-Capt. James Slattery and senior Bob Ogden, with Slattery scoring three touchdowns and Ogden running for 117 yards and one TD.

The Red Raiders wasted little time taking the lead, marching 71 yards in 11 plays after Craig Hammond's opening kickoff.

Slattery and Ogden did the bulk of the leg-work, while senior quarterback Ed Fleming (3-for-6, 80 yards) hit Kevin Broderick with a 19-yard pass on the third play of the game.

The payoff was a 25 yard TD pass from Fleming to Slattery, with the 6-2, 225-pound All-Conference standout running a simple curl pattern to the left sideline. The toss was perfect and Slattery cruised the final 10 yards untouched.

Scott Boyle, 4-for-4 on his conversion attempts with each of them clearing the crossbar by less than five feet, upped the count to 7-0 just 5:47 into the contest.

Andover retaliated with equal precision, taking Wilburt Horne's ensuing kickoff and driving 72 yards in nine plays following a modest seven-yard return by DiTroia.

Perry began the march with a seven-yard pass to Smith, then found Rourke wide open for a 15-yard gain. Smith took a pitchout around the right side for 10 yards, and two plays later Perry raced 13 yards on a keeper around left end.

The scoring trek was capped on a third-and-11 play, Perry shoveling the ball to Smith who then lofted a perfect 28-yard option toss to Rourke at the back of the endzone.

Rourke, who had beaten two Lowell defenders, made a diving catch to complete the spectacular play with just one second left in the opening quarter.

Hammond then tied it 7-7 with the PAT.

Aerial Attack

Lowell bounced back with a 65-yard, seven-play touchdown march, and at this point it appeared the last team with the football would be the winner.

Places First

Gerry Grasso, Andover teacher-coach, finished the Ironman Endurance Triathlon at Cape Cod, Sept. 8. His time was 12:04:54. The distances were 2.4 mile swim, 112 mile bike and 26.2 marathon. He placed 104th out of 249 participants. Grasso was first in the age 51 category, and second in the country and thirs in world in the age 50 and over category.

A 23-yard kickoff return by Ogden put the Red Raiders at their own 35, and Slattery moved the visitors into Andover real estate quickly when he rumbled 18 yards with a pitchout.

John Mahoney sliced six yards on a counter, Ogden added nine more with Tri-Capt. Brian Gleason recovering his fumble on the tackle, and Slattery powered for five yards to the AHS 27.

A holding penalty stalled Lowell briefly, but on third-and-15 Fleming's final pass of the game was a 36-yard bomb to Broderick who was ridden out of bounds at the Golden Warriors' one.

Slattery bulled up the middle for the go-ahead score at 2:52 of the second period, and Boyle's conversion kick boosted the lead to 14-7.

The final seven minutes of the half were spent exchanging punts, as things settled down.

Mark Polakow came through with the Golden Warriors' only sack of the game late in the half, throwing Fleming for a six-yard loss.

Costly Mistakes

Last year the rivals were locked in a 0-0 stalemate at halftime, and then Andover overcame an 8-0 deficit with 19 rapid-fire points in the last seven minutes of the game.

The Lowell coaches didn't want a repeat of that collapse, although it looked for a time like Andover might regain control of the momentum.

The third period kickoff was returned 14 yards by Rob DiTroia and, after Perry was thrown for a five yard loss, the AHS offense once again caught fire.

Perry scrambled for a 19 yard gain, a pair of three-yard runs by promising sophomore Steve Redgate brought the ball to the 47, and Chris Madden put the Warriors in Lowell territory with a six-yard pass reception.

Perry again scrambled free for 17 yards, then teamed with Shane Smith for a 17-yard pass-and-run completion to the Lowell 13.

Gleason stopped Perry for a two-yard loss on first down, and a pass to Keith Driscoll went incomplete.

Perry was then forced to scramble yet another time, and this one ended in disaster as his on-the-run pass was picked off at the LHS nine by Scott Boyle.

Boyle returned the ball to the 18, and a face-mask penalty against Andover tacked on 15 yards to the 33.

Ten running plays later (Lowell didn't throw a pass in the second half) the Red Raiders had moved 67 yards for the score, Ogden chewing up 61 of those yards including the final 16 as he exploded off right tackle.

Boyle's kicked hiked the count to 21-7 with just 25 seconds left in the third period.

Finishing Touches

Andover was forced into a punting situation early in the fourth quarter, although Redgate (nine yards) and Perry (nine and 11 yards) had nice runs in the mini-march.

The center snap sailed high over Perry's head, however, and by the time he retrieved the ball three Lowell players were bearing down. Bill Taupier made the hit and the Red Raiders had possession at the Andover 22.

Short runs by Ogden, Mahoney and Bob Dyer moved the ball to the one, at which time Slattery again got the call for the quick burst to paydirt.

Boyle's fourth conversion boot made it 28-7 with less than five minutes to play.

Neither team threatened the rest of the way, and two potential drives were blunted on consecutive-play fumble recoveries by AHS linebacker Brian Finnerty and Slattery.

Statistics

Lowell finished with overall edges in first downs (12-10), yards rushing (182-78), total yardage from scrimmage (262-168) and scrimmage plays (53-43).

Andover had a slight edge in passing yards (90-80).

Perry led all Golden Warrior ballcarriers with 57 yards in 12 carries, while Redgate added 13 net yards in five carries.

Rourke caught three passes for 49 yards, Smith two for 24 and Madden two for 18 yards. Driscoll also had one reception.

Perry punted three times for a 36.0 yard average, unloading kicks of 33, 45 and 30 yards.

Smith and Duncan participated in 13 tackles each, while other Golden Warriors seeing time on defense included Phil Starks, Austin Henderson, Redgate and John Nuzzo.

Andover's next home game will be October 6 when Wilmington comes to town (1:30 p.m.).

Soccer Opens With Punch Skate Club Begins Season

By She Livermore

The Andover High boys' varsity soccer team opened their 1984 season, away, last Wednesday evening by overwhelming Greater Lawrence Regional Technical 10-1. The game, played under the lights, attracted a huge crowd of supporters. If the group in town investigating the possibility of installing lights in Eugene Lovely field can accomplish their objective this year, perhaps Andover can offer Greater Lawrence Regional Technical a similar environment for the rematch.

Saturday's game with Wilmington had to be cancelled due to the heavy rain. It has been rescheduled for today at 3 p.m. at Lovely field.

Andover 10

Greater Lawrence Regional 1

Andover dominated throughout the lopsided contest and demonstrated its scoring prowess with four goals in the first half and six in the second.

Scott Wilkins scored the Warriors' first goal of the season on a pass from Paul McAdam.

Rick Boucher made it 2-0 when he accepted a pass from Keene, took the ball downfield and blasted it into the net.

A direct kick was awarded Andover midway through the contest taken by Keene; he directed the ball towards the net and Wilkins put his head on it, sending it into the net.

Mike Hardock, scoring his first varsity goal, made it 4-0 on a pass from Chris Sapuppo to close out the half.

Early in the second half sweeper and co-captain John Drake brought the ball downfield and passed it to Keene who directed a long shot towards the goal which went in over the keeper's outstretched hands.

The competition, taking advantage of the team's success, penetrated the defense and denied the shutout when Jose Cuesta scored with an assist from Paul Neal.

Left wing Paul Hevehan resumed the scoring for Andover when he sent a long shot towards the net, which Wilkins tapped at the goal line.

Hevehan made it 7-1 on another long shot with the assist going to Sapuppo.

Greater Lawrence Regional made another excellent attempt to score, but keeper Bob Pothier made a flying leap, grabbing the ball amongst the crowd, to thwart their efforts.

Keene, Hardock and Boucher each scored another with assists going to David Doyle and Keene on two of the goals to make it a satisfying 10-1 opening victory.

Drake turned in a fine performance, as did McAdam.

The Warriors face tough Chelmsford, away, Saturday at 10 a.m. They will be in Lawrence on Monday and at Methuen on Wednesday.

The Wilmington Figure Skating Club will begin its 1984-85 season Thursday, Sept. 13, at its temporary skating facility at the Janas Rink, Douglas Road (off Route 38), Lowell.

A badge program for the beginner/recreational skater, which is a step-by-step learning program that awards colorful badges for the successful completion of each of the 12 skill levels, will be held from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. Class size will be limited and will be filled on a first-come basis.

Membership for the patch and freestyle skater is offered at a new reduced rate. For further information, contact the club at P.O. Box 219, Wilmington 01887.

Girls Soccer Opens With Win

The Andover Girls Soccer team opened its season Thursday with a 2-1 victory over last year's league champion Masconomet.

Masconomet's Liz Brown scored first with just over a minute remaining in the opening half, heading a goal in off a corner kick from twin sister Emily. Andover came back very aggressively and got the equalizer just about halfway through the second half when Torrie Fitzpatrick picked up a rebound from an Aimee Ross shot. Several minutes later Andover was awarded a direct free kick just outside the area. Fitzpatrick drilled a picture-perfect shot over the opponent's wall and just under the crossbar for the game winner.

Kathy Neaves, last season's leading scorer, switched into goal for this game and turned in an outstanding performance. Capt. Julie Kittle-son, Saramichelle Sapuppo, Devra Weisman and Kara Oliver played well defensively. Lisa Marcella had an outstanding game at right wing, dominating her side of the field.

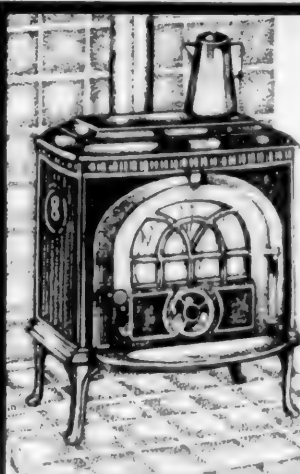

Other members of this year's varsity squad are: seniors Suzanne Curley, Joanne Martin, Karen Sofia, Anne Abele and Kathy Murphy. Juniors Kelly Johnson, Katy Hughes, Lisa Deeran, Ronnie Kovner and Debbie Cookson. Sophomores Cheryl Crawford, Laurie Habeeb, Julie Boland, Anne Kannam and Denise Doran.

The heavy rains from the tail-end of Hurricane Diana delayed opening games in the In-Town program last weekend. In addition, a tournament in Lynn played havoc with the Northern Middlesex League schedule. A brief report of the game that saw the Andover Attackers (Under 16 boys) defeat Lowell Soccer Club 3-1 follows:

Andover Attackers 3

Lowell Soccer Club 1

Lowell startled the defense early in the game and scored to take a 1-0 lead. Within five minutes, Steven Dumosch tied it up for Andover when he completed a penalty kick. He subsequently put the Attackers in the lead when he received a pass from Matt Young and blasted the ball into the net. Towards the end of the half David Rehe beat the keeper and connected with the net to give Andover a 3-1 lead. Lowell's defense in the second half denied Andover any good scoring opportunities, resulting in a 3-1 victory for the Attackers. BOW: Brian Worcester, Drew Dunn and David Penney.

and later by the "very artistic, flowing" script style.

Mr. Loh prefers to work in the running and standard styles. He works always with black ink on plain white paper; "It reveals better the quality of the calligraphy," Mrs. Loh says.

She explains that her husband once used special ink made from pine mixed with glue, beaten into a solid cake that is imprinted with Chinese characters and drawings in gold. The solid ink was carefully mixed with a small amount of water for two hours to obtain precisely the right texture. (These cakes are no longer made; those belonging to Mr. Loh are more than 50 years old.)

When it became too difficult for the Lohs to mix this ink, it took a bit of research to find an adequate replacement. The calligrapher now uses bottled ink imported from Taiwan, on paper that comes from Korea.

"Chinese calligraphy is very unique as art," Mr. Loh says. This is so in large part because each piece of calligraphy reflects a piece of Chinese philosophy: style and philosophy are married, and must "coincide," he explains.

Sometimes he uses his own poetry in his work, but mostly the calligrapher copies "very famous poems, very good poems," often from the T'ang and Sung dynasties.

"I select those poems with some intention to coordinate with the situation," Han-Chin says. "If I'm living in the mountains, I choose a poem describing living conditions in the mountains. Or if I go sailing, a poem that describes the sea."

To prepare for his exhibit, the calligrapher translated many of his favorite poems into English, a task he found very time-consuming and "very difficult." He translated the literal meanings, but found it nearly impossible to capture the true essence of each poem because he could not help losing the rhythm of the Chinese language.

One in a series of eight poems called "Autumn Thoughts" is translated, in part:

Billowy waves from the river roar and rush toward the sky;/Over the frontier pass,/wind and clouds sink to the darkening earth.

These clustered chrysanthemums, twice blooming/evoke the tears of yesteryears;/A lonely boat, as ever, is moored to the heart/that yearns for home.

Along with the strokes used to form each character, Mr. Loh strives to "put atmosphere" into his work as well — to make a poem about autumn have an autumn feeling about it.

"To coincide with Chinese philosophy, calligraphy has several fundamentals," he says. The calligrapher must write so that each character "has its own balance, so it will not tumble down on the paper. It is like a solid piece, individually."

And in turn, each group of characters should be in balance, "each character should coordinate with the other characters from the very start to the very end, so you make the whole piece in harmony."

But "before you write, you must form a ready idea in your mind," Han-Chin says. "Otherwise, you can never write good. Once you put down the brush (on the paper), there is no revision at all." The calligrapher always works "very quickly," he adds. "It shouldn't be slow — that is never good."

Perhaps one of the most difficult aspects of Chinese calligraphy is to form an idea in the mind. "When you write it, the impression is already in your mind — you don't have to copy it," Mr. Loh says.

"Everything must come from inside, not from outside." This is one reason that each piece of Chinese calligraphy is unique, and can never be duplicated, Mrs. Loh points out.

Most important of all is the handling of the calligrapher's instrument, the brush. This is what must be practiced hour after hour, year after year.

The large, soft-haired brush, inked into a fine point, is held upright, carefully

Hockey

The Squirt A hockey team came out flying in its first game of the season to beat Winthrop 4-3.

Left winger Andy Novelline took advantage of some hard work by his linemates Todd Noton and Ryan Moynihan and put Andover ahead by a goal one minute into the opening period. Less than three minutes later, defenseman Brendan Finneran drilled in his first career goal from the point to make it 2-0. Andover kept buzzing around the opposing goal until Novelline set up center Ryan Moynihan at the ten-minute mark for a 3-0 lead.

In the middle period defensive lapses enabled Winthrop to make it a 3-2 game heading into the final 12 minutes of play.

The third period belonged to Andover as they outthrust their opponents at both ends of the ice. Norton picked up his second assist of the game when he sent Moynihan in alone only two minutes into the third period. Moynihan's second goal proved to be the winning goal as Winthrop scored a power play goal only 50 seconds later to make it a 4-3 game.

Several key saves by goaltender Jay Stella, plus strong two-way hockey by the entire squad, kept Winthrop at bay until the final buzzer.

This victory should have a positive effect on the team as there are no returning players on this year's Squirt A squad.

Andover JVs

The Andover JV football team dropped its opener to Lowell, a 25-yard touchdown pass late in the first half keying an 8-0 Red Raiders' victory at Cawley Stadium.

The Golden Warriors' offense included several strong runs by Rich Bourdelais, Peter Barry and Mike Klinger, while quarterbacks Rob Carpentier, Glenn Allard and Jamie Clark alternated and enjoyed varying degrees of success.

Carpentier did complete a long pass to end Nick Lembo late in the contest, but the AHS offense sputtered in close and surrendered the ball four times inside the Lowell 25 yard line.

Allard also came up with one interception and barely missed a second pass theft.

The JVs host Billerica next Monday afternoon at Lovely Field (3:30).

Bardetti Volkswagen — From A Special Place, Special Cars

Every Volkswagen from Bardetti Volkswagen, 915 S. Main St. (Rt. 125), Ward Hill, is a model of value and efficiency. It offers the kind of reliability and durability you don't expect to find in any kind of product these days. It is designed with a Germanic passion for performance and technical excellence. And it will be fun to drive, and drive, and drive.

The Scirocco is part of a transportation system in which different Volkswagens are engineered to meet different driving needs.

The high performance characteristics of the Scirocco go hand-in-hand with its championship racing heritage.

This German sports car offers handling and performance in its most intelligent and practical form.

The Scirocco is unlike any other sports car in the world.

It is a unique combination of three distinct heritages.

The Scirocco's heritage of German engineering has created a technically brilliant vehicle. Every element of design, engineering and features work together to produce a sports car of unusual power and grace.

The Scirocco's racing heritage goes hand-in-hand with its outstanding performance and handling characteristics. Scirocco has never been afraid to put its reputation on the line, and for three years running has been the overall champion in its SCCA racing class.

Finally, Scirocco is part of the great Volkswagen heritage. That accounts for its extraordinary fuel efficiency. And very un-sports car-like price.

The Scirocco is perhaps the most intelligent and practical combination of value and performance in the sports car world.

A Volkswagen is the single smartest purchase you can make.

Choose friendly service and engineering excellence. Choose Bardetti Volkswagen. Open weekdays 8-5 and Sat. 9-5. Tel. 687-0696 or 374-0711.

balanced between three fingers ("like chopsticks"). The elbow is raised at a right angle to the paper, the arm held still, like "a solid piece from wrist to elbow." Then the wrist is moved "freely, round and round."

The key to balance and harmony is in the brush. "You touch the paper with the center of the brush, not the side hairs," Mr. Loh explains. "Just hold the center to make balance and harmony." The poem that gives his exhibit its title is translated, in part, "Do concentrate and unify, always grasp the center."

Balance and harmony are at the center of Chinese calligraphy — and of all things, Han-Chin Loh says.

He quotes the Chinese prophet Confucius: "Let a state of balance and harmony prevail. Heaven and earth will preside over it. And all things will be nourished and flourish."

Leftover whipped cream can be dropped by dollops onto a waxed paper-lined tray and frozen. Store in the freezer in a moistureproof bag for later use. These individual-size servings thaw atop berries, pudding or cake in about the same time it takes a family to finish dinner.

LOOKING BEYOND THE MESS

If you're looking for a good buy in an older home, and see one in which the housekeeping leaves something to be desired, don't be turned off immediately. Look beyond the mess. Don't let your first impression deter you from seeing the IMPORTANT features of a house.

For example, the structure of the house and the general layout may be in excellent condition, easily convertible to your own ideas of decorating and family living. The kitchen may be cluttered and unkempt, but large and well stocked with cabinets, pantry, and other features. A worn and dirty carpet in the living room may be covering a beautiful hardwood floor that you can make sparkle again. Also, carpets can be cleaned or replaced.

It takes good visual imagination to see how a house can be transformed to meet your own ideas of decorating. If the house is sound and has the features you want, you may find that the poor housekeeping will work to your price advantage.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 5 PUNCHARD AVE., ANDOVER. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

NEW MARKET SHAPING UP

Who's buying houses? Who's renting? Although most people think of the classic home-buying family as mother-father-child, the fastest-growing household today is that of the single individual, whether widowed, divorced, or never married. Singles now represent more than 23 percent of U.S. households. During the 1970s, when population increased by 11.5 percent, singles' households went up 64 percent!

As real estate professionals, we keep a finger on the pulse of American living patterns. It helps us tailor our advertising and sales approaches for more successful marketing of our services - and YOUR property.

When you're ready to sell YOUR house, take advantage of our years of market experience. We've got the knowhow to price your property to maximize your return yet speed the sale. We can advertise and show your house to its best advantage. And our experienced negotiators can help you get the best possible price - usually far more than you'd get on your own.

Caron Withdraws Request

Before the Zoning Board of Appeals could turn down his variance North Andover funeral director John Caron withdrew the request that board members were likely to deny.

Caron has been talking to town officials since last April's Town Meeting about putting a funeral home in Andover, something he still wants to do, said his attorney, Charles F. Dalton, of Andover.

Dalton told THE TOWNSMAN last week that Caron was not going to withdraw his request to put his business in an apartment house at 42-44 Elm Street, located in the town's Single Residence A district. A tentative vote by Zoning Board members after a visit to the Elm Street site was to deny the request, said Ernest Hall, who presided over the board hearing on Thursday, Sept. 6, where Caron and Dalton presented their case.

But because Caron changed his mind and withdrew his petition "without prejudice" he will be able to go before the board again with the same request if he so desires. Dalton said the North Andover man may look around town again for a properly zoned piece of land where he can operate a funeral home.

"I spoke to several members of the board and generally speaking the board wants to help John," said the Andover attorney. "Right now John has no immediate plans. He wants to do this right or not do it at all."

At the Appeals hearing Dalton tried to prove to the board that the four bedroom apartment building, owned by Dennis Doherty of Andover, was a hardship for him to continue owning and maintaining. The argument didn't convince the board and Dalton knew it, saying "we knew we were on thin ice."

Caron tried to rezone that same piece of land to General Business at Town Meeting but failed to get a majority of the votes needed to do so.

order to continue with his ham radio hobby. The renewed permission would allow Brunquell to keep his 40 foot antennae behind his home. Five years ago the board gave him permission but that will expire in November, said Brunquell.

Joseph and May Bernard, 459 Rear South Main St., will ask the board for a variance that will allow them to add a second story addition to their home, which is located in a Single Residence C district.

The board will also hear a variance request from Louis and Eunice Lawson, 92 Gould Road, who want to add a breezeway and single stall garage to their home.

Literary first editions, Presidential letters from George Washington through Ronald Reagan, letters from authors such as Charles Dickens, Mark Twain and Ernest Hemingway, and rare, out-of-print and scarce books will be featured and sold at the Antiquarian Book Fair at Old Sturbridge Village on September 22 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Women's Fall Look Is Long And Oversized

By Susan Rand

Longer hemlines, vibrant accessories and oversized but comfortable clothes are among the fall women's fashions available for Andover shoppers.

This season's most dramatic change may be the lowering of skirt hemlines, in some styles right down to the ankle. Another new look is the "boxiness" of women's jackets which are part of the men's look influence in clothing.

There are extremes, too. Fabrics are both soft, featured in the fuzzy, comfortable winter sweaters stocking shelves, while there is also the leather rage, manifested in this fall's collection of leather skirts and slacks. Big colors are loud vibrant splashes, many of which are contrasted with stark whites or blacks. A survey of some women's outfitters in Andover and surrounding towns showed that the most popular "new" color is royal or cobalt blue, especially when it is paired with black or winter white.

Still, local shops are stocked with a full line of traditional clothing for the businesswoman who wants a more conservative image. These clothes don't go to the extremes of the more stylish haute couture designs but still offer new colors and lines for the smartly dressed woman.

At R.L. Petersen's, in Andover, something brand new is the black leather skirt and a white wool jacket, said owner Dee Zolner, who added that the leathers were "Big and may be mixed with everything." And winter white is big at Janet Lee's shop in Salem, N.H., where it is featured in pants, skirts and silks, she said.

Zolner is also highlighting a number of separates that may be that coordinated by color-family, to make a lot of different outfits with just a few pieces. She said cosmetic colors may add highlight an outfit and create a new look. The move is to softer colors for lips but brighter eye and blush colors, Zolner explained.

At Andover's Yankee Lady owner Marian Carpentier said her skirt lengths were at 30 inches this fall, "very definitely longer than last year," she added. The skirts are topped with unconstructed jackets, not really referred to as blazers anymore, explained Carpentier. That same big look is featured at Aurora, of Newburyport, where manager Susan Zampell has installed a collection of gray, taupe and raspberry wool suit separates.

Electric blue, gray and winter white are the "in" colors at Gardenia, in Andover, where manager Cheryl Hammel said her fall wear was large and oversized. Hammel said the dolman top, with a knit banded bottom, over a skinny skirt was a popular look this season.

At the Taylor Shop, in Lawrence, owner Millie Vogel said she has a collection of the longer skirts as well as the 27 inch skirts that many of her customers still prefer. Lee, too, is carrying skirts in all three popular lengths.

an added touch—they are reversible, at Her Majesty, said manager Honey Hammersla. They are fashioned in Scotch plaids patterns, she said. The return of the kilt is also evident at Aurora where the plaids are less of the "preppy" prints so popular in years past. Instead the Newburyport shop has vibrant contemporary designs, said manager Zampell.

Said Vena Coco, owner of Andover's Pappagallo, this fall's silhouettes showcase a lot of men's looks yet they will be "redefined by the woman who wears them."

Skirts in suede and leather are featured this fall at JSR Inc., in Kittery, Maine. A large selection of Ultra Suede outfits with polyester and silk shirts dyed to match is available, said manager Heide Gates. The skirts are longer at JSR, she said, with the longest a "boot skirt" that is 34 to 36 inches. Gates said she is also expecting a line of wool skirts, many in tweeds, to be big sellers this fall.

Many of the retailers agreed that the voluminous look in suits and also winter coats, which are appearing in man-tailored styles with very few clasps or closures, has carried over into the new fall and winter sweaters.

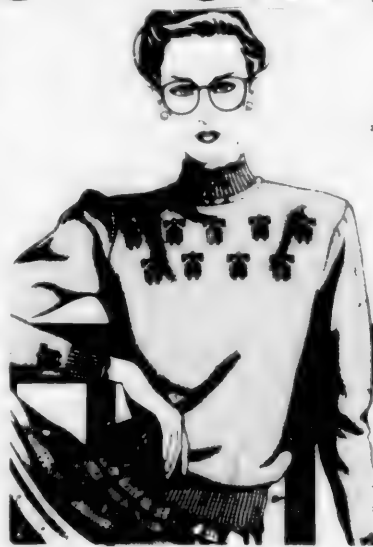

Vogel's shop has cashmere styles that are more fitted as well as bulky raglan sleeved designs. Vests are still big sellers and at Petersen's where the sweaters and vests come in a number of designs and materials such as silk, angora and lambswool blends, said Zolner. She said her holiday collection, not yet in the store, will feature the ever-popular cotton sweaters in natural jute tones. They are also a drawing card at Geraldine Young's Gabriel, in Newburyport. Young said she thought this fall's biggest news was in sweaters, which, she said, are longer than ever. She features a number of designs in soft lambswool, angora and cashmere in both bright and vibrant colors as well as in the classic navy, black and whites.

Mohairs and "loopy" knit sweaters are the style at the Yankee Lady where some of the designs also have the new larger larger sleeves. There are also both cotton and acrylic vests at her Andover shop, said Carpentier, who added that the biggest selling item now was the outdoor sweater or "sweater jacket." A number of fun sweaters are featured this fall at Aurora where the hand knitted designs of cats, penguins and Scottie dogs are pictured on the pullovers and cardigans.

As a contrast to the mannishness of some of this fall's suits the new dresses are softer and more feminine than ever. Imported and American-made knit dresses and suits are highlighted at Her Majesty, said Ham-that the evening colors include white, "making a big comeback," bright blue as well as blue and black together. In her more formal wear, Hammersla said her popular colors were the more muted tones, including periwinkle, beige and shades of gray. Coco said a lot of large and splashy patterns and geometric prints were also making their debuts this fall. At Janet Lee's evening dresses is decorated with sequins and lame for fall and holiday wear.

As skirts are getting longer the coats that cover them are getting shorter. At Vogel's shop there are a number of 3/4 and 7/8 lengths, she said. And Hammersla is already selling her winter coats some of which feature fox fur trim. There is also some call for capes this winter, she said. A popular color this winter according to Hammersla is olive. Imported Irish woven capes are also featured at Pappagallo this fall. They are great over the large, loose-fitting sweaters, said Coco.

Shoes are reflecting the skirt change this fall as the heels become smaller as the skirt hems descended. There are also mixed textures on a lot of the fall shoes, said Coco. Some are leather with lizzard and some are imitation lizzard mixed with the leathers to keep the costs of the shoes down. Gray is still a very popular shoe color, Coco said, making it "almost a fashion staple."

The shoe texture is carried over into handbag designs, many of which are match the shoes. Textured bags, a lot are shoulder bags, are popular a Pappagallo, Her Majesty and Aurora.

One way to jazz up an old outfit is by adding some of this fall's "chunky" jewelry, much of it oversized and in bright colors. Carpentier said the large designs look great with the boat-neck style and v-neck sweaters that are popular this fall. Pearls and twist beads are also another popular choice. In gemstones or imitations, these designs come in almost any color and some are variegated. They may be worn separately as a long, single strand or twisted and held together with a clasp. At Pappagallo the staff will teach customers as many as eight ways to wear the beads, even designing them into a belt, said Coco.

"You can really do a lot with them," she said. "And get so many lengths from the strands."

To complete a look many of the store owners and managers suggested adding some of the new textured stockings which come in man-styled designed such as herringbones, pin-dots or argyles, but with a woman's have to come off the drawing boards of America and Europe's most popular designers, there are the good old comfortable standbys at Liss, in Andover. This fall's selection features sportswear by Levis, Nike and Jordache, said manager Karen Brown.

There are jackets and jeans and a lot of sweaters at Liss, Brown said, and the most popular color so far in their wool sweater collection is purple. And you don't have to play tennis or golf to appreciate the comfort of sports clothes, many of which are available at Point, Set, Match, in Andover, where sports enthusiasts are shopping.

New Colors Sprucing Up The Men's Look

Spicing up the usual blue and gray and pinstripe uniform of the male executive are a lot of new colors and patterns in this fall's line of fashions.

Browns have hit the scene this fall, in a number of different hues, and the color is a welcome change and one that has been due for some time, said Enzo Fossella, owner of Enzo of Andover.

"Brown has been neglected for a long time," the men's outfitter said.

"Everyone always goes to blue and gray.

And, said Fossella, new patterns in pinstripes have brought out a new feeling in the staid suits. Also featured this fall are herringbone fabrics and sharkskin cloth in a number of different colors, again including the new brown tones.

Fossella said his two-button suits and sportcoats give men a neat look. They add to the "trimness," of a man's figure, he said. Also in sportcoats Enzo said a number of new tweeds and the Harris tweeds are popular as are features like patch pockets and center and inside vents. Worsted wool gabardine is a "very important" fall fabric and comes in tan, blue and brown in trousers, said Fossella.

Stripes aren't only appearing on suits but on men's shirts giving men a new dressing option for men. Fossella said he carries fall shirts with beige and rust stripes and off-white with brown and blue as well as a lot of shirts with grey highlights. Neckties, too, he said, are coming out in new colors. The most popular of which has been the paisley print.

An old favorite has been revived and updated in new fall collections. The argyle sweater will appear in the same sweater and vest styles but with new designs, said Fossella.

"The argyle will have the same basic feeling and will be successful," he said. "And we have had a lot of requests for cardigan sweaters. The sweater vest, too, is very important. People like to have arm mobility."

Soft, comfortable materials like cashmere, alpaca and camel hair will also complement the wool collection of winter sweaters at Enzo's.

The Acne Years

Almost everyone gets some form of acne during adolescence whether it is an occasional blackhead or severe long-term skin problems. Here are some helpful facts for teenagers.

Girls usually get acne at an earlier age than boys. The peak incidence of acne occurs at age 14 for girls and at age 16 for boys.

The most severe forms of the skin disorder generally occur three to five years after a person's acne begins.

Fortunately, very effective acne treatment is available. Basic acne treatment involves measures aimed at reducing the production of the skin's natural oil including unblocking the pores through which the oil flows through to the skin surface, controlling bacteria which may become a problem in acne and reducing the inflammation associated with acne.

To achieve these ends dermatologists now have many effective acne treatments. The persons who can best select treatment specifically for your child is the physician who specializes in the care of the skin, a dermatologist. Or consult your family doctor.

Hair Care Hint

What good is a haircut if you can't hold the shape?

That's the idea behind the new styling mousses that are appearing in the beauty departments at pharmacies and department stores. Styling mousse is light, frothy foam that eliminates fly-away hair leaving a number of styling options. Dramatic effects will result whether hair is permed, tinted, blow or finger dried, set with heated rollers or curling irons.

Layered styles tousled with mousse look chic and short shapes look snappy. Even fine hair gets the extra body it needs. They are so popular that the hairstylists of stars like Brooke Shields and Nancy Reagan are using the new mousses.

Household Cleaning Tips

A soap made for hands can be handy in the kitchen or bathroom. It's great for cleaning surfaces such as bathtubs, stoves and refrigerators because it is not abrasive. To use, just sprinkle some on a damp sponge and apply to surface.

You can use the same soap to cut road film the next time you wash your car by adding one-half cup of the powdered soap to a pail of warm water for a lean machine.

In the laundry some powdered hand soap may be used for pretreating stubborn stains before washing them. Simply wet the stained area with cool water, sprinkle with powdered soap and rub or brush. Rinse, then toss in the washer with the rest of your laundry. It works to remove stains including chocolate, oil and catup.
